

ABSTRACT

- 5 The present invention provides a process for producing immunoglobulin A in the milk of hyperimmunised ruminants using a 3 route immunisation protocol and uses for the resultant product. These products are useful in producing formulations useful for passive immunisation against selected pathogens, especially in preparations for food products and dietary preparations.